

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to a method for culturing blue-green algae, comprising the steps of obtaining desired algae species, inoculating the culture medium and carrying out mass culture, and characterized in which said culture medium contains fermented and aerated high-nitrogen organic substance and has a pH of 8 or greater, and is 5 free of inorganic salts, such as carbonate or hydrogen carbonate.